ABSTRACT

This report is the third in a series presenting information and analysis on transfer students among Washington's two- and four-year public and private colleges and universities. Transfer data are presented for each institution for fall terms 1971 through 1975. While some variations in transfer patterns exist in each sector during the years reviewed, student mobility has remained quite stable during the last few years, with variations reflecting the increases in part-time students and student median age at most Washington institutions. ABSTRACT

This report is the third in a series presenting information and analysis on transfer students among Washington two- and four-year public and private colleges and universities.

Transfer data are presented for each institution for fall terms 1971 through 1975 as available from Higher Education Enrollment Projections (HEEP) reports and Management Information System (MIS) reports submitted by the institutions. In the case of institutional data not being available through these reports, reasonable estimates have been included in the summary tables as noted.

In 1975, there were 15,955 transfers to Washington institutions accounting for 8.63 percent of the total full-time equivalent (FTE) student population. Of these transfers, 3,342, or 20.9 percent, were from out-of-state institutions.

While some variations in transfer patterns exist in each sector covered in this report during the years reviewed, student mobility has remained quite stable during the last few years, with variations reflecting the increases in part-time students and student median age being experienced at most Washington institutions.

Introduction

This is the third report prepared by the Council for Postsecondary Education on the mobility of undergraduate students at Washington public and private two- and four-year institutions. The report is part of the continuing effort to provide information and enrollment analysis for planning purposes. The report covers fall terms 1971 through 1975.

The base data for the four-year colleges and universities are the Higher Education Enrollment Projection (HEEP) reports submitted to the Office of Program Planning and Fiscal Management by the institutions, and for the community colleges, the Management Information System (MIS-1) report submitted to the State Board for Community College Education by the institutions. Transfer students, as defined in the HEEP instructions, are all students who are transferring college level credits from some other institution, and were registered for credit the previous term at some other institution.

Transfer data for each institution begins on page 17. As will be noted, a few institutions were not able to provide data for either 1974 or 1975. Subsequent to the preparation of this report, the State Board for Community College Education was able to provide additional information for some institutions. Where no actual data were available, reasonable estimates were made (since missing data for one institution affects all sectors) in order to derive a close approximation of system totals on which to make the analysis. Such estimations or adjustments are noted where appropriate.

This report does not include 1976 data for the community colleges or the independent colleges and universities. The 1976 community college MIS-1 report is still being processed and is not available at this time. Fall HEEP reports were not submitted by the independent institutions for 1976. If and when these reports become available, the Council will provide information on the current year mobility.

While this report is based on fall term transfers, it should be noted that additional unduplicated transfers are reported in winter and spring terms. A total of 1,183 undergraduate transfers were reported at the public universities during the winter and spring terms of the ~~1976-77~~ 1975-76 academic year. Undergraduate transfers to the state colleges during the winter and spring terms of the ~~1976-77~~ 1975-76 academic year totalled 852.

Total Undergraduate Transfers

The total number of transfer students to Washington two- and four-year institutions has remained relatively stable over the last four years following an increase in 1972. Table I on the facing page indicates the total transfers to each of the four sectors of postsecondary education covered in this report -- public universities, public state colleges, independent colleges and universities, and public community colleges. Included in these totals are both the intrasector transfers (such as the mobility between public universities or mobility within the community college system) as well as the receipt of transfers from out-of-state institutions.

When viewed as a percentage of the total undergraduate FTE population, transfers among Washington colleges and universities have declined slightly since the 9.58 percent high reached in fall term 1972.

The relationship of out-of-state and in-state transfers are as follows:

	1971	1972	1973	1974	1975
In-State Transfers	10,796	12,776	12,568	12,246	12,613
Out-of-State	2,938	2,903	3,535	2,939	3,342
All Sources	13,734	15,679	16,103	15,185	15,955
Percent Out-of-State	21.4%	18.5%	22.0%	19.4%	20.9%

The greatest single variation in receipt of out-of-state transfers exists at the community colleges where in 1973 the total was 1,395 and in 1974 this had dropped to 961, a decline of 434. The 1973 bulge was partially explained by the existence of programs during fall term at some institutions in specific response to students in the military.

Public Universities

The pattern of transfers to the universities over the last five years reflects both a sharp increase in 1972 and a steady decline to 1974. In 1975, however, transfer levels again increased from all sectors, returning to approximately the 1973 levels. Data available from the fall 1976 HEEP reports submitted by the universities indicate an increase of transfers to the institutions to 4,483 from the following sectors:

	Transfers	(+ or - 1975)

Independent	326	+ 27
Community Colleges	2,605	- 149
Out-of-State	948	+ 137
	4,483	+ 82

While this report concerns undergraduate transfers only, the University of Washington also reports graduate and professional transfers which have increased from 688 in 1972 to 1,004 in 1976, an increase of 45.9 percent in four years. Washington State University does not report transfer students at these academic levels on the HEEP reports.

Transfers from public universities again indicate a pattern comparable to the five year experience of transfers to the institutions, with the greatest student mobility taking place in 1972. Since then, transfers from the universities have declined through 1974 and again increased in 1975 as have the transfers from other public institutions.

State Colleges

Transfers to the state colleges, unlike the universities, showed the greatest number in 1971. The fluctuation since then has been predominantly the instability of the community college transfers. While this instability exists at both the university and state college sectors, looking at community college transfers to both sectors combined tends to diminish the seemingly erratic transfer patterns.

Data available from fall 1976 HEEP reports submitted by the state colleges indicate the receipt of 2,950 transfers from the following sectors:

The Western Washington State College share of these transfers has increased from 31.4 percent in 1971 to 42.0 percent in 1975. Correspondingly, the other three institutions have experienced declining percentages of transfers as shown on page 10.

Transfers from the state colleges peaked in 1972 followed by decline and relative stability in 1974 and 1975. The 65.8 percent increase in students transferring to the universities in 1972 accounted for the major portion of this peak.

It should be noted that transfers at the graduate (and unclassified 5th year) level are not included in the totals but account for an additional 157 transfers to EWSC (89) and WWSC (68) in 1975, and 130 transfers to EWSC (75) and WWSC (55) in 1976.

Community Colleges

As the greatest source of transfers to all public and private four-year institutions, the fluctuation of community college transfers has had an effect on the enrollment patterns of those institutions and thus merits a review of community college enrollments as well.

While the total academic and occupational FTE enrollments in the community college system has risen 31.5 percent from 1971 to 1975, the relationship of academic to occupational enrollments has changed substantially.

PERCENTAGE OF TOTAL FTE ENROLLMENT
(Not Including Community Service)
1971 to 1975

	Academic	Occupational
1971	60.0%	38.8%
1972	54.5%	44.3%
1973	53.8%	45.7%
1974	52.3%	46.9%
1975	52.5%	46.3%

In absolute numbers, the occupational enrollments (not usually considered potential transfers) have grown by 15,068 FTE students while the academic enrollments have increased by 6,154 FTE students.

According to the State Board for Community College Education, while the number of students enrolled in transfer programs has remained relatively stable, more are becoming evening part-time students and thus the number of potential transfer students may be declining. While no data are yet available on transfers to community colleges for 1976, public colleges and universities reported a total of 4,527 community college transfers in Fall, 1976, only 57 short of the 4,584 in 1975.

The reporting of transfers to community colleges during 1971 through 1975 are not as precise as the four-year public institutions. The 1971 transfers within the system may not be of the same reliability of subsequent years. In 1975, several institutions did not submit data to the State Board in time to be included in the MIS-1 report. Subsequent to the data compilation for this report, the State Board was able to provide institutional totals for Fort Steilacoom (314), Walla Walla (160), and Tacoma (452). Sources of these transfers were partially available and in the absence of actual sources, estimations were made based on 1974 distributions.

Additionally, Everett Community College confirmed their substantial decline in transfers in 1974 and 1975 caused by (1) the growth of neighboring community colleges that has resulted in their sharing of university transfers and (2) the decline in military personnel for which programs were offered in 1972-73. Edmonds Community College was not able to provide data for 1974 and 1975, and the State Board suggested their 1973 data be carried forward for these years as an estimate. At best, these adjustments are a close approximation.

Transfers to and from community colleges include a large number of students that transfer within the community college system itself. Since 1972, these students have accounted for approximately 32 to 35 percent of the transfers to community colleges. During the same period, between 45 and 47 percent of all students transferring from a community college did so to attend another institution within the system.

In 1975, approximately 53 percent of the transfers to community colleges entered academic programs and approximately 47 percent enrolled in occupational programs.

While all other sectors of institutions may be viewed as "receivers" of transfer students, community colleges are the predominant "senders" to the four-year colleges and universities. The graphic line on the following page indicates less variation in transfers to four-year institutions than is shown on other sector graphs.

Independent Colleges and Universities

Transfers to independent colleges and universities declined during 1974 and 1975, relative to the levels experienced in the two preceding years.

Since no data were available, it was necessary to provide estimates for Walla Walla College for 1974 (185) and St. Martin's College for 1975 (125). These estimates were based on previous experience and distribution of sources were based on preceding year percentages.

The two predominant sources of transfer students are Washington community colleges and out-of-state students, accounting for approximately 85 percent of the transfers in each year with almost equal students coming from both sectors.

While the peak in transfer students from the public sector was reached in 1972, the independent institutions did not have the same experience, and in fact, 1972 was the lowest point in transfers from this sector. The pattern of variation is not sufficient to address the fluctuations except to note the increased mobility of students from independent institutions to community colleges in the last four years. As reported in the 1975 MIS-1 summary, these transfers appear to be about equally divided in the academic and occupational programs at the community colleges to which they transferred.

Conclusion

Several factors may account for the stability of total in state transfers since 1972.

Enrollment trends in Washington institutions during the last several years indicate an increase in student median ages (from 23 to 29 in the preceding five years at the community colleges), an increase in part-time students at the public four-year institutions and an increase in students enrolled in occupational programs at the community colleges. These trends do not indicate that any major change in mobility pattern among Washington college students can be anticipated in the near future.
